Contents

Our Privacy Policy describes the principles by which Veridian protects the privacy of personal information in its possession. It addresses the reasons why such information is collected, how it is used, how its confidentiality is protected and outlines the customers' rights in respect of this information. Our Privacy Policy incorporates and expands the 10 principles for the protection of personal information, as devised by the Canadian Standards Association (CSA).

This Privacy Code does not apply to information about business customers who carry on business as corporations, partnerships or other forms of association. Veridian does, however, protect the confidentiality of such information in accordance with the law and our own policies.

Personal Information Protection Principles

1 Accountability

Veridian is accountable for the protection of all personal information within the organization's possession or control, including any personal information that has been transferred to a third party for regulatory, legal or processing purposes. Veridian will require a comparable level of protection of this information from its third party relations.

As Privacy Officer, Veridian's Manager of Business Services has overall responsibility for the protection of personal information and for Veridian's compliance with this Privacy Policy.

2 Identifying Purposes

Personal information that Veridian collects from customers includes:

- the customer's name and address and other contact information, such as telephone numbers and email addresses;

When an individual applies for service, Veridian will make the individual aware of the purposes for which Veridian is requesting the personal information. Veridian will advise that it is the individual's right to refuse permission for Veridian to use personal information for any new purposes.

Additional purposes for collecting personal information may be identified to an individual before or at the time of collection. However, at a minimum Veridian will collect personal information for the following purposes:

3 Consent

Veridian will obtain consent before or when it collects, uses or discloses personal information about an individual. An individual can provide consent to the collection, use and disclosure of personal information about them expressly or implicitly. Veridian will collect, use or disclose personal information without an individual's consent only in limited circumstances as permitted by law. Subject to certain legal and contractual restrictions and reasonable notice, an individual can refuse or withdraw their consent to the collection, use or disclosure of personal information about them at any time.

All existing customers will be informed of what types of personal information have been collected, the purpose for the collection and the procedures available for contacting Veridian with any inquiries. All new customers will be provided with a consent form and an accompanying explanation about the collection, use and disclosure of their personal information when requesting service.

4 Limiting Collection

Veridian limits the amount and type of personal information it collects to that which is necessary for the business of the utility. Each affiliate of Veridian will be responsible for its own collection, use and disclosure of information. Personal information will be collected using procedures that are fair, transparent and lawful.

5 Limiting Use, Disclosure and Retention

Veridian will only use the personal information for the purpose for which it was collected as identified in principle 2, unless consent is given by the individual to use or disclose it for another purpose. Veridian will maintain explicit retention periods for closed accounts, after which the personal information will be destroyed or made anonymous.

Under certain exceptional circumstances, Veridian may have a legal duty or right to disclose personal information without the individual's knowledge or consent.

6 Accuracy

In order to ensure the reliable delivery of electric service and the correct billing for such service, all personal information will be kept accurate, complete and up to date.

Individuals may challenge the accuracy and completeness of personal information about them and have it amended, as appropriate.

7 Safeguards

In executing its responsibilities with respect to the confidentiality of personal information, Veridian will employ a number of safeguards, appropriate to the sensitivity of the information, to protect personal information against loss or theft, as well as unauthorized access, disclosure, copying, use, or modification. Such safeguards will include physical measures, organizational measures and technological measures (i.e. locked filing cabinets, restricted access to offices, security clearances, limiting access on a “need to know” basis and use of passwords and encryption). Procedures for implementing these measures will be communicated to all employees and third parties to ensure compliance with this principle.
